The balls given by G. Division in past years have been the events of the season. That of January 4th is expected to eclipse all previous efforts.

A RUNAWAY occurred on Jasper avenue on Wednesday afternoon. Dr. True's team became unmanageable while being speeded against a single horse, and Mr. and Mrs. True were thrown out, without suffering any injury however, and the horse ran until they struck a telegraph post which separated them from the sleigh and they started for home. The pole of the sleigh was broken, otherwise not much damage was done. As the horses were running they crashed into a fence owned by R. Brownson and damaged it slightly.

The British, Manitoban, papers of a recent date contain an account of the celebration to a large circle of relatives and friends of the 300th birthday of Mrs. McLeod, grand mother of councillor K. A. McLeod of Edmonton. Mrs. McLeod is still in the enjoyment of good health and her full mental faculties. Her eightieth birthday, however, is gone, the result of an accident which occurred six years ago when she was run over by a team. Up to that time her age might have been 100. During the celebration of her birthday she sang three stanzas of a hymn. Mrs. McLeod's maiden name was Annie McLeod, and she was born in St. John, New Brunswick, and afterwards removed to Glenora, Ontario. She was the mother of seven sons and four daughters, three of whom are still living. Two of her sons met death in the American war. The younger of the two was lieutenant in the navy and was unmarried at the time of his death and Mrs. McLeod now receives a pension from the United States government on his account.

A REPORT is current to-day that A. Verecken, of St. Albert, who left on a visit to Belgium last fall, has been lost at sea.

The latest in municipal matters is that a requisition is being circulated asking Mayor McCauley to stand for another term. It is possible that he will accept. Councillors Sanderson, Goodridge and Gallagher are mentioned as certain to be candidates. Councillors McLaughlin, Strong and McLeod have not yet decided, but the two former probably will. Messrs. Malcolm McLeod and Jas. Ross are also spoken of as possible candidates.

THE German settlers on Stony Plain have grown small crops of fall wheat and fall rye for the past two years, and are so well pleased with their success that they have increased their acreage this year. The grain is sown in September. The seed was brought from Galicia, Austria, from which district most of these settlers come, and where they grew both fall wheat and fall rye. The object in experimenting with these fall grains is to secure greater variety of crop, and besides the fall sown grain ripens earlier than spring sown, and is therefore less liable to damage by early fall frosts. It is grown partly because it gives a somewhat larger yield than wheat, ripens somewhat earlier, withstands frost better, and besides the flour is preferred by the people to that of wheat, as being more wholesome than fine wheat flour.

A FARMER of Sturgeon settlement brought in two loads of fresh pork last week for which he received $230 in cash. This is equal to 920 bushels of oats at present prices. Allowing 100 bushels of oats to a load, he would have required nine trips with oats to have equalled in value the two trips with pork and besides the loads of pork were not as heavy as the loads of oats would have been. In this change from marketing raw grain to marketing the grain manufactured into pork or beef lies the truest and surest solution of the transportation problem in the Northwest. Grain that will not bear the very lowest railway rates in the form of grain will easily bear rates that will be profitable to the railway company and still allow living prices to the farmer, if turned into pork or beef.

C. GALLAGHER imported 2,300 lbs of geese and turkeys from Ontario to supply the Christmas demand in Edmonton, the local supply being altogether inadequate. Very few geese were offered locally and the supply of turkeys was light and the birds mostly small. One of the turkeys brought from Ontario weighed 22 lbs, and another 18 lbs. It seems a great pity that enough fowls are not yet raised in the district for local requirements and that they have to be brought so far. At the present price of 15c a pound to the farmer raising turkeys ought to pay well, especially with wheat at 30c to 35c a bushel. But if the district is short on fowls it is all right on beef. A Durham cow sold by Jas. Tough of Long lake and now hanging in Mr. Gallagher's shop is as fine a specimen of Christmas beef as could be seen in any country.

EDMONTON BULLETIN, THURSDAY, DEC. 10, 1903.

A IMPENDING LAND SLIDE.

The result of the recent Winnipeg election to the common and of two Ontario elections to the local legislature show that the freedom which has been the leading feature of Canadian politics for over twenty years past has at last given way and that the political forces of the country are ranging themselves along other lines than those which have so long been expressed by the names reform and conservative. People have become so used to seeing elections carried on the merits or by the efforts of one or the other of the parties mentioned that to see an election fought on other grounds and won by other forces seems to many to be like sacrifice, when they can at last realize that it has occurred. But there is no reason why it is not desirable. It is inconceivable that in a country of such vast extent, such great diversity and such immense possibilities that the lines upon which political parties were formed and fought thirty years ago should be the proper lines for the political parties of to-day. If anything has been accomplished in the past by one party or the other, so much of the cause of difference between the two parties must have been removed or the reasons of difference increased. In Canada the case has been that circumstances caused the formation of two political parties under their present names over thirty years ago for the purpose of giving effect to certain well defined principles on the one hand or the other. The exigencies of the times brought forward great men to lead these parties. They fought their battles hard and long with good generalship and great determination, with the result that the two parties of originally intelligent voters became two thoroughly defined and disciplined political armies or machines. The drill and discipline and mutual opposition inspired have served to keep alive the two organizations long after the questions in regard to which they were first organized were decided; and new questions had to be brought up not because of the requirements of the country but because of the need of something to keep up enthusiasm and discipline. But while the parties have been standing still the country has been growing and questions without number have arisen in both federal and provincial politics which the welfare of the country required should be dealt with, but which were kept in the back ground by the tact and force of the existing parties, simply because no party advantage could be taken of them. What took place at Ottawa under a so called conservative government took place at Toronto under a so called liberal government. Sound and good though the policy and administration of Sir Oliver Mowat at Toronto have been there is no doubt that he has a faculty for shelving troublesome questions that however laudable from a conservative point of view is not the policy of progress that the province demands and requires. The recent elections which have gone in favor of candidates representing principles distinct from each other and from both the old parties as well show plainly that there are questions of importance that they do not feel they can trust Sir Oliver to deal with and they therefore send men charged expressly to see that these principles are pushed regardless of party cost. The moral effect of the three elections mentioned will probably be greater than their direct political effect. A vote either way will not affect either the government at Ottawa or that at Toronto. But the fact that constituencies can be carried in a by-election against a government having a large majority shows that the voter is asserting his right to think for himself and that he wants a representative who will do the same. It shows that the day of bribery of constituencies with promises of gov't favors is nearing a close, it will tend terribly to discourage the use of the "barrel" in elections, for if money cannot buy an election money will not be spent, and it will end the scandal of dividing voters into flocks like sheep, the Ottawa government taking a township here and the Toronto government a township there in the full confidence that no matter what has occurred in the meantime the people will vote in the coming election as they did in the former one. Taken altogether these elections are a sign of a change and an improvement in the politics of our country, and whether they hurt this government or that they will do the country good.

An article in the latest issue of the Calgary Weekly Tribune makes certain comments regarding the recent murder in Edmonton which can scarcely be allowed to pass unchallenged. On the strength of "stories told by recent arrivals from the north," the Tribune insinuates that the coroner's jury who sat upon the case and who had all the evidence at first hand, did not fix the blame upon the right man, and that in fact suspicion pointed more strongly to the Chinaman than to the prisoner Sheppard. The story of the crime as published by the Tribune is directly contradicted in its important particulars by the evidence given at the inquest and at the preliminary examination, and its publication is all the more inexcusable as practically a copy of the evidence was in the Tribune's hands at the time. It is not considered a proper proceeding to make newspaper comment upon the evidence given in a case that is still before the courts, but when the comment made is based on distinct contradictions of the evidence given, which evidence was beyond question correct, it becomes an outrage on decency. The BULLETIN has hitherto refrained from commenting on this case, but the action of the Tribune makes it necessary that the matter should be put straight.

RAILWAY RATES AGAIN.

To the Editor of the Bulletin.

DEAR SIR: As the C. & E. freight rates seem to be the general topic of the day I deem it prudent to pen the following. And to begin with I must say considering our present progress and enlightened age, our people are not very backward in the point of advocating justice. Instead of us beginning at the root of the weed and digging it out and casting it to the sun atmospheric exposure, we simply start at the top and adopt the ineffective mode of cutting its branches, thereby instead of retarding its growth, we strengthen it. When the people of this northern terminus of civilization obtain justice in freight rates from this enormous company, it will be when we have made some unprecedented rush for liberty. Instead of the fish nibbling at the bait he must by some means capture the hook and fisher and cast them to the bottom of the sea never again to rise. We adopted the lion to his infancy and have allowed him to grow to a state of manhood, and now we plead for mercy under his paw. This C. & P. R. company at its present magnitude is a potent factor over our Canadian race. It developed its growth when the country was in its youth, and it has now in a business sense far surpassed our Canadian intellect. We are but a feeble mouse tossed by the cat's paw. Owing to its clocklike and perfect mode of operation together with its unbounded influence and governmental sway we find ourselves incapable of coping with it in any way, shape or manner.

All those long peaceful years we have been quietly slumbering in our lone silent couch, thoughtlessly dreaming of a prosperous future. Alas! Alas! only now to rouse and find ourselves warned by the headmen with his axe uplifted, he there I have slain thousands. We then get up and declare war with the foe, but after a series of battles, and after our generals have displayed all their military talent in manoeuvring our troops to every imaginable advantage, we are defeated in every engagement, and finally driven to unconditional surrender. Yes my dear brother in arms we are completely conquered, and to the victors belong the spoils. We are here to deliver up everything and receive in return what they have a mind to give us. And to keep our grievances in circulation we persist in petitioning them for a reduction in freight rates. The only consolation we get is an endless chain of promises. Frequently we succeed in getting a cent or two knocked off, but it is only temporary. Owing to their avaricious greed for the lion's share they immediately resume the trifling rate of ninety-nine per cent.

Years ago when our only means of transport was overland by wheel and runner, we then thought if we could only secure a railroad this the height of our ambition would be attained. With these views a few of the leading spirits of Edmonton and precincts, combined their efforts and after a hard struggle succeeded in negotiating the move. The railroad was eventually built and the terminal point established within two miles of Edmonton. The grasping C. & E. at this juncture perceived an opening for speculation, and went to work and subdivided a new townsite and opened out in strict opposition to the very people who were the sole means of having the road built. Not satisfied at this, after stealing the name and fame of their town, they made a bold and daring, although fruitless, effort to capture their land office, and yet after our pioneers being so treated, we have the audacity to ask why in the last decade have our people all went to the States. The question propounded is this: Are we here to be governed and ruled by the laws of equity, or are we here to fall victims to the unerring aim of this impending monopoly. If the former I wish to see some steps of justice administered. If the latter, here is another son of a gun for California.

HASTE.

GENERAL NEWS.

MacLeod Gazette: A party of surveyors left Lethbridge last week, and are now working westwards, surveying out the proposed route of the C. P. R. extension to MacLeod.

W. T. Stead of the Review of Reviews is credited as saying that J. W. Boughough founder of "Grip," is the cleverest cartoonist in the world. Mr. Stead does not know everything, but he knows a good cartoon when he sees it.

Lieutenant Governor Mackintosh told the Winnipeg Tribune recently that he would go to Ottawa in February to discuss the question of the extension of the control of the provisional territories over Athabasca. A committee will be appointed to look after the amounts of money spent in this district on schools and the illicit liquor sellers will be provided for. There is also the question of an exhibit at some central place in the Northwest in 1896 to celebrate the completion of the century since the driving of the last spike in the C. P. R. Calgary is spoken of as the place for holding the exhibition, but this has not been settled yet.

A Nebraska dispatch says: (re t desti-tion and suffering prevails among the farmers of the northwestern Nebraska. Hundreds are in absolute need, and no local aid can be furnished. There have been successive failures of crops, and provisions cannot be obtained. Some of these farmers are separated by many miles on the open prairie, and are in imminent danger of death from cold and starvation. The ministers in that section have made a united appeal for help. Clothing and food are especially needed.

Free Press: Sir John Thompson seems to have made a great hit in referring to the circumstance of Mr. Laurier having the support of both Mr. Tarte and Mr. Martin; the one a defender of separate schools, and the other the author of the bill abolishing them. The great success of the reference appears to have been due to Sir John's calling one the black Mr. Tarte, and the other the yellow Mr. Martin. The point of what was evidently a tremendous display of wit has not reached the general public in Manitoba, so it must be taken for granted. But a good opportunity of further contrast was lost. In the hands of a humorist like Sir John a galaxy of antitheses was possible. Here is the orange-colored Mr. Bowell sitting cheek by jowl with the very blue Mr. Dummet, the royal blue Mr. Clark Wallace with the emerald green Mr. Costigan, Mr. Wood with Mr. Curran, and others of like dissimilarity. The difference of opinion between Mr. Tarte and Mr. Martin is of little consequence. The matter on which they are apart does not concern either of them as members of the house of commons. It is a Manitoba question within the jurisdiction of the provincial legislature, and neither Mr. Tarte nor Mr. Martin have any power to meddle with it. But Mr. Bowell was, and Mr. Clarke Wallace is, the head of an order professing to have little in common with Sir John Thompson, except the possession of offices with salaries of $7,000 a year. For years these two gentlemen, sworn under an oath breathing little sympathy with the rulers of the Catholic church, have spoken and voted in support of Sir Hector Langevin, who was the political impersonation of the Church of Rome in Canada, and when circumstances of an unpleasant nature consigned that mouthpiece of the bishops to a back seat, Mr. Bowell, Mr. Wallace and Mr. Wood found no difficulty in transferring their support to Sir John Thompson, who abandoned the sect to which Mr. Bowell belongs to become a Roman Catholic. It would seem therefore that Sir John Thompson for the moment forgets the adage which enjoins persons who live in glass houses, not to throw stones.
